
Movies

Posted by Tiara - 2007/09/18 15:42

Wich Sense & Sensibility movie/serie do you prefer?

I watched 95 for the first time 2 days ago, it was wonderful:laugh: First movie ever who made me cry. (Not even Titanic make me cry:P)And now I think there is no excuse to PP 05 that it only has one and a half hour. This book is not much longer/shorter (don` t remember) but still the movie is SO good. Even the story was cut.

Hope to see 81 in short time;)

Post edited by: Tiara, at: 2007/09/20 10:25

Re:Movies

Posted by LadyMary - 2007/09/19 21:09

I don't think I've seen any of the Sense and Sensibility films, but I'm glad to hear you thought the '95 version was "wonderful". I'll have to check them out and get back to you on which version I prefer. But thanks for posting on S&S, rather than Pride & Prejudice, which seems to dominate the conversation here.

Re:Movies

Posted by Tiara - 2007/09/20 10:28

Yes you should see it!:) I don` t think we are talking much at all. It is kind of dead here, but I am sure we can change it!:laugh:

Re:Movies

Posted by btravis - 2007/09/21 16:06

Are there any topics specifically that are not being covered that you would like to talk about? I'm taking suggestions!!

Re:Movies

Posted by Tiara - 2007/09/29 14:16

No don` t worry, we` ll get better:P

Re:Movies

Posted by Tiara - 2007/10/11 08:57

Has anyone seen the 1981 version?
I couldn` t find ANYTHING good about it, awful!

Re:Movies

Posted by dmrbooks - 2007/10/18 14:03

I loved the 1995 movie too. I didn't even know there was a 1981 movie. Who was in that one?

I do think that part of what made the P&P miniseries so much stronger than the 1995 movie of P&P was the length. Those characters really got a chance to develop. But you're right, the S&S movie had that same feel.

I didn't like Emma, the movie, as much. Did you?

=====

Re:Movies

Posted by Tiara - 2007/10/19 16:08

Elinor was something like Irene Richard, if you have seen pp from 1980 she is playing Charlotte there, and Marianne's first name was Tracy. I haven't seen any Emma movies yet. But I don't have high expectation to the one with Gwyneth Paltrow (sorry for the spelling).

=====

Re:Movies

Posted by ivana21 - 2007/10/21 15:25

Tiara wrote:

Elinor was something like Irene Richard, if you have seen pp from 1980 she is playing Charlotte there, and Marianne's first name was Tracy. I haven't seen any Emma movies yet. But I don't have high expectation to the one with Gwyneth Paltrow (sorry for the spelling).

I love that Emma movie, I can't compare;) because I didn't watch any other version but you should see it, maybe it will be a pleasant surprise.

Post edited by: ivana21, at: 2007/10/21 15:25

=====

Re:Movies

Posted by Tiara - 2007/10/21 18:48

ivana21 wrote:

Tiara wrote:

Elinor was something like Irene Richard, if you have seen pp from 1980 she is playing Charlotte there, and Marianne's first name was Tracy. I haven't seen any Emma movies yet. But I don't have high expectation to the one with Gwyneth Paltrow (sorry for the spelling).

I love that Emma movie, I can't compare;) because I didn't watch any other version but you should see it, maybe it will be a pleasant surprise.

Post edited by: ivana21, at: 2007/10/21 15:25

yes, hope so, gonna see it as soon as I get the chance:)

=====

Re:Movies

Posted by Samitude - 2007/11/30 04:22

I actually liked S&S 1981 better than the 1995 one. The 1981 version has most of the book in it, however I still haven't warmed up to Col. Brandon in it. The 1995 version was all right, but I didn't like that they cut out several characters and made Elinor be too old. I'm looking forward to the 2008 S&S. It looks like it will be good.

As for Emma the 1996/1997 one with Kate Beckinsale has my vote hands down. The Gwyneth one makes me roll my eyes. Emma's future husband is no surprise at all. As soon as one sees him one knows that he is the hero. It's way too obvious.

=====

Re:Movies

Posted by Tiara - 2007/11/30 08:55

I can't see that Elinor from 1981 should be younger, I think she looks much older than 18 too. And I can't stand the ridiculous bad acting and cheap costumes and everything.

=====

Re:Movies

Posted by plainjanegal - 2008/05/10 00:15

Tiara wrote:

Elinor was something like Irene Richard, if you have seen pp from 1980 she is playing Charlotte there, and Marianne`s first name was Tracy. I haven`t seen any Emma movies yet. But I don`t have high expectation to the one with Gwyneth Palthrow (sorry for the spelling).

You do know that Irene Richard played Elinor in the 81 S & S?

I enjoyed all 3 S & S's but none were "perfect" for me.

No Margaret in the 81. Elinor was WAY too old in the 95-although I thought Emma Thompson did a great job acting, and that scene of Willoughby seducing Eliza Williams sickened me in the 2008 S & S.

I understand BBC also made another S & S back in 71 but they do not have it for sale. The actress who played Mrs. Gardiner in the 95 P & P played Elinor in that one. BTW, she and the actress who played Georgiana in the 95 P & P are mother and daughter.

=====

Re:Movies

Posted by jonsgirljen - 2008/07/23 16:55

I absolutely loved the '95 version of Sense and Sensibility. I've seen another one, not sure what year, but it was done by BBC. Actually, I have the BBC versions for all the books, but I still have yet to watch them all.

But the '95 version was very good. My sister and I love that movie, and my sister isn't a huge reader, but she ended up reading the book after seeing the movie, and she loved it too.

I just enjoyed everything about it, the characters, the dresses, the scenery, it just went so well. It was a fantastic movie.

=====